It Was Happening With You

It wasn’t just unfolding in front of you.

You were part of what was happening.

The moment included you, not as observer, but as presence.

Not separate. Not outside.

Already within it.

It was happening with you.